Nutrition in its broadest sense embraces not only digestion and assimilation of food, but also the excretion of the end-products of metabolism, and the elimination of tissue waste. The body has but two channels by which building material may enter, the trachea. for air and the esophagus for food: there are four by which the unused and excess material as well as waste substances are ejected-the lungs, skin, kidneys and bowelsthus showing that Nature puts twice the stress upon the outgo that she places upon the intake.

While it is important that the purity and wholesomeness of the air and food supplied the, body be ensured, of vastly greater importance is the efficient elimination of the constantly accumulating substances which are of no further use in the economy system. Food let alone will never hurt us, but waste left in the body will surely poison us. Elimination is a function that must be maintained at its highest prefection if normal health is expected. The efficient bowel elimination is an important factor in the prevention of disease and the maintenance of health cannot be disputed as is evidenced by the fact that the relief of chronic constipation often brings about a cure of many chronic conditions.

Often have we seen nervous conditions relieved by correcting faulty bowel elimination, and skin diseases cleared up by the same method.

About eight out of ten cases of chronic disease give a history of constipation. This does not mean. however, that constipation is necessarily a cause of or even a symptom of the disease that is present, but simply that the bowels are weakened along with the other organs of the body. Many people, however, attribute their illness to their constipation, it becoming aimost an obsession with them. It is the one symptom about which they worry and lament.

When the fundamental basis of constipation is clearly understood, and the treatment in accord with the physiology of the intestines employed, I believe there is no case. not due to organic causes, that cannot be relieved.

For the purposes of this article we would say that there are but two causes of constipation-enervation and muscular atonicity.

MAY COST YOU YOUR LIFE

THAT the sins of the guilty are oftimes visited upon the innocent, is a truth as old as the hills and will probably maintain throughout the ages. In this instance the young man or men of good character and worthy purpose who are to be seen almost any day hiking along the highways and waving down the single motorist with the idea of securing a "lift" on their journey, is likely to be passed up and allowed to plod along his weary way on foot. And all because some other equally well dressed and decent looking young fellow, picked up by a kind-hearted motorist, either deliberately shot and robbed the accommodating driver of the car or else forced the owner out of his car at the point of a gun and then stole the car.

A few days ago a traveling man of Findlay picked up a nicely dressed young man on the road to Defiance. After they had sped along for several miles the stranger pulled a gun and without a word of warning shot and mortally wounded the man who had befriended him. In fact he shot him twice and then threw him out into the bushes in a ditch at the side of the road, leaving him for dead, and continued on his way to Toledo where he abandoned the car. More recently an Osborne man picked up two men six miles east of Dayton and after riding along for a few miles one of the men shoved a revolver at him and ordered him to stop. The two then searched the victim, took $10 in money and, after ejecting him from his car, drove away.

ups which are taking place almost every day throughout the country. This method of robbery and even murder is becoming so frequent that the motorist, in order to protect himself and his property, must realize that every time he extends a kindness of this kind he is taking his life in his hands. Recently we picked up two young men just outside of this city and took them on into Dayton. They turned out to be two students who were out on a hike and were both fine young men worth favoring and worth knowing. On our return trip we picked up two young men who said they were automobile mechanics looking for a job. Neither had been employed for some time and both were broke; one representing that he had a wife and baby at home in Detroit. They did not turn out to be robbers but men without jobs or money are liable to turn robber and what if the two college boys had not been college boys at all?

strangers along the highways, no matter how well dressed they may be. The best and most successful crooks in the country are always well dressed-and clothes do not make the man. So, in our small way, we warn all motorists against giving strangers a "lift." True, the honest "hiker" will have to suffer for the sins of others but it is best that one man be compelled to walk than that another man be compelled to ride-in a hearse.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

The success and failures of religion must be of large interest to the general public as every one in turn discusses them. In religion as in other phases of our civilization we have reason to conclude that we stand at the threshold of a new era. If such be the case the distinguishing feature of the new age in rebellion is not obscure nor uncertain.

To this writer the precision in cultivating the religious life which may be anticipated is ground for great hopes in the future. Mere standardization of processes in the arts and sciences is of no worth; the improvement of the product warrants extreme care and detailed method of production. In like manner investigations have proved that the religious education of the human species can be conducted on a far more precise scale and that such precision of method gives excellent results.

THE BUSINESS PERSON'S LUNCH when it begins to thicken, quickly add new cautiousness more than has the science of human mind. Fortunately our new knowledge coincides with the one-half cup of canned or freshly cook- ers of religion in ed peas; and (if liked) one-half cup methods and principles that the leadof either fresh cucumber out in cubes times followed. oCnsequently assiduore one third cup of chopped cucum- ous study of their works with the ber pickle. Turn all into a cold mold broad basis in modern science will be and chill. Serve on crisp lettuce with the program of preparation for the modern religious leader. The follies, foibles and fallacies of provincial-minded persons then can be displaced with a method of cultivating the religious spirit far more sutable and far more successful. It is the part of the general public to foster the new movements in religious education both for the sake of economy and for more rapid Christianization of the American type of civilization. Obscurantism and stubborn doubt should yield to cheerful study and acceptance of the new religious pedagogy. This will of course greatly facilitate the growth of true religion in each individual.

The Folly of "Bargain Price" Pavements

Here is the paving situation as it exists in typical American communities.

Several years ago many of these communities paved their roads at what they considered a bargain price. The taxpayers thought they had saved thousands of dollars.

But they had not taken into consider. ation the astounding increase in motor traffic. Not built to stand up under such traffic, the roads were soon badly in need of repairs. The annual maintenance figures assumed staggering proportions.

Today, those maintenance costs have reached a total which more than wipes out the original "saving." And in many cases the roads are gone—it has become absolutely necessary to build new ones, this time of permanent construction.

Other communities, refusing to be misled by the "bargain price" argument, also built roads several years ago. They built for permanence with concrete.

Those concrete roads, built in accordance with approved standards of highway construction, are in as good condition, today as when they were built. And the cost of repairs and maintenance has been merely nominal. In fact, this saving is actually paying for these permanently paved highways. And remember that this saving will continue long after the bonds are paid for.

Which of these communities will yours be? Think it over. Then write us for facts and figures. We can prove to you that the most economical paving in the end is concrete—it has repairs built out and the maintenance built in.

HIS ONION QUEEN (DELIRIUM NO. 9)

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY"

Hick and his bride, Morning Glory, having arrived at their onion ranch in Nevada, Society's spotlight is now being turned on the Smearcase-Smallpox nuptials, an event of early June.

BY MACK SAUER

Exquisitely delightful and charming was the April Shower given by the highly aristocratic and fastidious Hammer Club at its palatial club rooms last evening. The occasion, lovely in its informality, was attended by nearly two score, prunes being provided for nineteen

Starting the evening off with a bang, Mart Berry strolled lazily into the center of the room, which was fragrant with baled straw and sweet potatoes, holding an artistically decorated flower sack in which struggled a cunning little animal. Loosening the string, he turned the sack upside down and out jumped a bewitching little Maltese kitten with a card tied to a ribbon around its neck bearing these words-"Abrigal Smearcase to Longfellow Smallpox, Sometime in June."

The cat was now out of the bag and congratulations poured in like bills on a poor newspaperman the first of each month. Longfellow blushed a beautiful pink, harmonizing perfectly with his new silk socks.

Miss Smearcase, who is a vivacious slim model, weighing the neighborhood of 138 lbs., was quite pathetic in a gorgeous black shirtwaist which was fastened up the back with large white oval pearl buttons. Down the sides of her calico skirt were ruffles of corduroy held in place by an artistic arrangement of safety pins. Sparkling five and ten cent store earrings were suspended from her ears and her teeth were filled with cement. On her head she wore a spring bounet on which was the word "Spring.

REMEMBER IT?

Ground coffee is all right. But the world would have been kinder If it hadn't discarded The old coffee grinder.

The Onion Queen, whom everybody knows weighs a jolly 200, not being present, we hesitated in saying they had a "large and appreciative audience." The audience was appreciative all right.

ATTORNEY GENERAL THINKS COURT WILL

Believes Court Served De Facto-Johnson Takes Exception

Opinion of Attorney General C. C. Crabbe Wednesday that police court, now held to be operating unconstitutionally explains the position of the city in the matter, City Solicitor J. A. Finney said Wednesday.

Crabbe declared that the determination of cases by Police Judge E. D. Smith is expected to be held valid by the courts up until the time the Court was ruled invalid in that the local court could be construed as a de facto body and its actions would be sustained, up to the point that its unconstitutionality was decreed.

This would indicate that any cases determined by Judge Smith after the local court was declared unconstitutional, are invalid and subject to Attorney Johnson Wednesday sent a letter to Attorney General Crabbe in answer to the former's opinion in which he explained the local situation and his contentions in the matter. The letter follows:

"Recently, I filed suit against the try" or "nation." Attorney Johnson filed two additional cases Wednesday in Common Pleas Court making a total of five. 524.23. More suits will be filed as they are prepared, he indicated Wednesday. Suits filed Wednesday are for John Allen and Lewis Overstreet.

In the Allen case he seeks to recover $363.85, the amount of the fine said to have been imposed on Allen on a conviction of a charge of possessing liquor. In the Overstreet case, the fine of $302.40 was for the same offense but only $152.40, of the amount said to have been paid into the city treasury, is asked. City Solicitor Finney is occupied with developments in the future on the question of what Xenia is going to do for a court. He is attempting to learn whether the old mayor's court could be placed in existence and function legally in the same capacity as the police court, as a temporary remedy.

Nutrition in its broadest sense embraces not only digestion and assimilation of food, but also the excretion of the end-products of metabolism, and the elimination of tissue waste. The body has but two channels by which building material may enter, the trachea. for air and the esophagus for food; there are four by which the unused and excess material as well as waste substances are ejected-the lungs, skin, kidneys and bowelsthus showing that Nature puts twice the stress upon the outgo that she places upon the intake. While it is important that the purity and wholesomeness of the air and food supplied the body be ensured, of vastly greater importance is the efficient elimination of the constantly accumulating substances which are of no further use in the economy system. Food let alone will never hurt us, but waste left in the body will surely poison us. Elimination is a func-tion that must be maintained at its highest prefection if normal health is expected. The efficient bowel elimination is an important factor in the prevention of disease and the maintenance of health cannot be disputed as is evidenced by the fact that the relief of chronic constipation often brings about a cure of many chronic conditions. Often have we seen nervous conditions relieved by correcting faulty bowel elimination, and skin diseases cleared up by the same method.

About eight out of ten cases of chronic disease give a history of constipation. This does not mean. however, that constipation is necessarily a cause of or even a symptom of the disease that is present, but simply that the bowels are weakened along with the other orhowever, attribute their illness to their constipation, it becoming aimost an obsession with them. For the purposes of this article we would say that there are but two causes of constipation-enervation and muscular atonicity.

MAY COST YOU YOUR LIFE

THAT the sins of the guilty are oftimes visited upon I the innocent, is a truth as old as the hills and will probably maintain throughout the ages. In this instance the young man or men of good character and worthy purpose who are to be seen almost any day hiking along the highways and waving down the single motorist with the idea of securing a "lift" on their journey, is likely to be passed up and allowed to plod along his weary way on foot. And all because some other equally well dressed and decent looking young fellow, picked up by a kind-hearted motorist, either deliberately shot and robbed the accommodating driver of the car or else forced the owner out of his car at the point of a gun and then stole the car.

A few days ago a traveling man of Findlay picked up a nicely dressed young man on the road to Defiance. After they had sped along for several miles the stranger pulled a gun and without a word of warning shot and mortally wounded the man who had befriended him. In fact he shot him twice and then threw him out into the bushes in a ditch at the side of the road, leaving him for dead, and continued on his way to Toledo where he abandoned the car. More recently an Osborne man picked up two men six miles east of Dayton and after riding along for a few miles one of the men shoved a revolver at him and ordered him to stop. The two then searched the victim, took $10 in money and, after ejecting him from his car, drove away.

These are but two instances of many similar holdups which are taking place almost every day throughout the country. This method of robbery and even murder is becoming so frequent that the motorist, in order to protect himself and his property, must realize that every time he extends a kindness of this kind he is taking his life in his hands. Recently we picked up two young men just outside of this city and took them on into Dayton. They turned out to be two students who were out on a hike and were both fine young men worth favoring and worth knowing. On our return trip we picked up two young men who said they were automobile mechanics looking for a job. Neither had been employed for some time and both were broke; one representing that he had a wife and baby at home in Detroit. They did not turn out to be robbers but men without jobs or money are liable to turn robber and what if the two college boys had not been college boys at all?

It is a dangerous business, this picking up of strangers along the highways, no matter how well dressed they may be. The best and most successful crooks in the country are always well dressed-and clothes do not make the man. So, in our small way, we warn all motorists against giving strangers a "lift." True, the honest "hiker" will have to suffer for the sins of others but it is best that one man be compelled to walk than that another man be compelled to ride-in a hearse.

"Women," says Mrs. Catt, "should learn to talk in order to promote peace." Goodness sakes, Carrie! What have they been doing all these years?—Marion, O., Star. Promoting peace by talk is assuming the aggressive.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

The success and failures of religion must be of large interest to the general public as every one in turn discusses them. In religion as in other phases of our civilization we have reason to conclude that we stand at the threshold of a new era. If such be the case the distinguishing feature of the new age in rebellion is not obscure nor uncertain.

To this writer the precision in cultivating the religious life which may be anticipated is ground for great hopes in the future. Mere standardization of processes in the arts and sciences is of no worth; the improvement of the product warrants extreme care and detailed method of production. In like manner investigations have proved that the religious education of the human species can be conducted on a far more precise scale and that such precision of method gives excellent results.

No science has contributed to this new cautiousness more than has the science of human mind. our new knowledge coincides with the one-half cup of canned or freshly cook- ers of religion in ed peas; and (if liked) one-half cup methods and principles that the leadof either fresh cucumber out in cubes times followed. oCnsequently assiduous study of their works with the broad basis in modern science will be the program of preparation for the modern religious leader

The follies, foibles and fallacies of provincial-minded persons then can be displaced with a method of cultivating the religious spirit far more sutable and far more successful. It is the part of the general public to foster the new movements in religious education both Mrs. J. W. Permanent roads are a good investment -not an error

Here is the paving situation as it exists in typical American communities.

Several years ago many of these communities paved their roads at what they considered a bargain price. The taxpayers thought they had saved thousands of dollars.

But they had not taken into consideration the astounding increase in motor traffic. Not built to stand up under such traffic, the roads were soon badly in need of repairs. The annual maintenance figures assumed staggering proportions.

Today, those maintenance costs have reached a total which more than wipes out the original "saving." And in many cases the roads are gone - it has become absolutely necessary to build new ones. this time of permanent construction.

Other communities, refusing to be misled by the "bargain price" argument, also built roads several years ago. They built for permanence with concrete.

Those concrete roads, built in accordance with approved standards of highway construction, are in as good condition. today as when they were built. And the cost of repairs and maintenance has been merely nominal. In fact, this saving is actually paying for these permanently paved highways. And remember that this saving will continue long after the bonds are paid for.

Which of these communities will yours be? Think it over. Then write us for facts and figures. We can prove to you that the most economical paving in the end is concrete—it has repairs built out and the maintenance built in.

Exquisitely-delightful and charming was the April Shower given by the highly aristocratic and fastidious Hammer Club at its palatial club rooms last evening. The occasion, lovely in its informality, was attended by nearly two score, prunes being provided for nineteen

Starting the evening off with a bang, Mart Berry strolled lazily into the center of the room, which was fragrant with baled straw and sweet potatoes, holding an artistically decorated flower sack in which struggled a cunning little animal. Loosening the string, he turned the sack upside down and out jumped a bewitching little Maltese kitten with a card tied to a ribbon around its neck bearing these words-"Abrigal Smearcase to Longfellow Smallpox, Sometime in June."

Miss Smearcase, who is a vivacious slim model, weighing the neighborhood of 138 lbs., was quite pathetic in a gorgeous black shirtwaist which was fastened up the back with large white oval pearl buttons. Down the sides of her calico skirt were ruffles of corduroy held in place by an artistic arrangement of safety pins. Sparkling five and ten cent store earrings were suspended from her ears and her teeth were filled with cement. On her head she wore a spring bonnet on which was the word "Spring."
